Impeachment Proceedings Threatened—Extra Session Call Completed Despite Governor's Opposition.

EDITOR SAYS WALTON SEEKS PRESIDENCY

Gaylord Claims He Plans to Run on Anti-Klan Ticket—Ban on Oklahoma State Fair Lifted.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Oklahoma City, Okla., September 18.—Plans took shape among members of the legislature today to convene a special session in defiance to Governor Walton to consider his of official acts. Impeachment proceedings are considered certain if a sufficient number of the legislators can be rallied to the cause.

A call for an extraordinary session was completed tonight, and is ready to be filed with the secretary of state as soon as a majority of the members of the house have signed a petition to convene the session.

On the other hand, Governor Walton is firm in his determination to give his enemies in the legislature no chance to "interfere" with his declared intention to "wrest the civil government from the domination of the invisible empire and make the visible government again supreme."

Jail Is Threatened.

He reiterated that any lawmaker that attempted to hold a special session of the legislature would be sent to jail.

Governor Walton holds that the legislature cannot meet in extraordinary session, except upon his call, this procedure being outlined by the state constitution. He is ready to meet such an attempt with force.

Sponsors of the special session, however, take the stand that the house can meet upon petition of a majority of the membership without the governor's consent and form an inquisitorial body to investigate conditions in the state, both public and private.

It is not contended that the house has the authority on its own motion to convene and consider legislation without the executive's consent.

Declaring that the government is in a fight to determine "whether the governor is a dictator" or whether this is a state of executive judicial and legislative government," promoters of the plan announce that a majority of the lower house already has consented to the meeting, sixty-four members, they declare, having responded favorably to the call.

Will Appeal to Courts.
Should the meeting be interfered with, it was said, the state supreme court would be asked to intervene. Another course open is to seek a ruling from the supreme court before an attempt is made to convene the house, putting up to the court the legality of the session call.

Legislators directing the movement from headquarters in a downtown hotel declared they were not instituting a fight "for or against any organization."

"We intend to investigate charges made against law violators both in public and private. It is not the purpose of the legislature and no member has in mind the protection of crime," it was stated.

An attempt to impeach Walton would not be without opposition, as the governor has strong supporters in the legislature. Several house

SOLDIERS PATROL BERKELEY RUINS SEEKING LOOTERS

Armories, Churches, Big Halls and Semi-Amusement Places Are Now Crowded With Refugees.

Berkeley, Calif., September 18.—Heaps of sodden, water-soaked ashes, broken chimneys pointing crazily at the sky, and jagged, dead walls, were all that remained today of what was yesterday one of the most beautiful, restful places in the west—the northeastern section of Berkeley.

Soldiers and police patrolled the ruins tonight with fingers on ready triggers, alert for looters, or peering about with electric flashlights for bodies, on the chance that all might not have escaped from the wind-whipped inferno.

It was the belief of Acting Chief of Police C. D. Lee, however, that all escaped with their lives, as the district offered many broad avenues of exit. A number of children were posted as missing today, but they were school children who were at their studies when the fire broke out, and who could not get back to their homes.

20,000 Homeless.
The armory of the University of California, the big halls down town, the nearby churches and many other public and semi-public places were crowded with refugees tonight. According to a police estimate between 12,000 and 15,000 are homeless, the fire having swept a thickly populated area for fifty blocks or more.

Cragmont, an exclusive residence section, the equally exclusive Euclid avenue, with its rows of university fraternities and sororities and the great hilly sweep from this street to Shattuck avenue, the main business street, was a dreary waste tonight, with searchers hurrying everywhere. The Red Cross maintained many stations on the edge of the district to care for refugees and workers alike. Hundreds of university students aided in the patrols. The fire apparatus remained, pouring many streams on to the glowing carpets of sparks here and there.

It was reported late today that the priceless libraries of Professor Alexis Lange, nationally known authority on education, and Professor C. E. Chapman, prominent American history scholar, had been destroyed. Both are members of the faculty of the University of California.

The board of fire underwriters in San Francisco today appraised the damage at $3,000,000 exclusive of personal belongings. It is expected that these will amount to at least $2,000,000 more.

Forest Fire Raging.
San Francisco, Calif., September 18.—Central California continued today to be ringed by forest and brush fires, a number of which were beyond control. Two towns were destroyed and others were threatened by flames. The Red Cross is still burning south of this forest.

Two men are thought to have lost their lives and $100,000 in property of the Sugar Pine Lumber company has been destroyed in Madera county by a fire that was all but under control tonight. Seven hundred men are on the fire line.

Rioting continues at Loerback.
A mob threw hand grenades at police officers who tried to disperse them Tuesday. One person was killed in the riot, killing one person and wounding two others.

Navy Pilot Flies At Rate of 266 Miles Per Hour

Two New Electrically Timed Air Speed Records Established.

Mitchell Field, New York, September 18.—Lieutenant "Al" Williams, navy pilot, today established two new electrically timed air speed records over the measured one kilometer course at Curtiss field. He averaged 247.1 miles an hour for four trips over the course, and on one flight, aided by a brisk wind from behind, he reached the speed of 266 miles an hour. Both records were accepted by the navy department as authentic.

Mount City, Kansas, September 18.—Judge E. C. Gates, Tuesday, issued an order barring all persons under 18 years of age, from attending the sessions of the trial of Allison J. Scott, merchant of La Cygne, charged with murder. Scott is charged with killing his wife. Eleventh, on June 19. Examination of prospective jurors began Tuesday.

PEACHTREE STREET MURDER SUSPECT HELD BY POLICE

Father of Lawrence Hamilton, Here From Birmingham, Suggests Revenge as Possible Motive.

INVESTIGATORS CLING TO ROBBERY THEORY

Coroner's Inquest Over Body Recessed to Thursday in Expectation of New Arrests Today.

With the arrest Tuesday morning of a negro suspected in connection with the murder Sunday night of Lawrence A. Hamilton, world war veteran, the coroner's inquest, scheduled to take place Tuesday afternoon was suspended until Thursday morning, at the request of police detailed to probe the shooting.

Hamilton, who was shot to death at Peachtree and Third streets just after 9 o'clock Sunday night, is believed to have been the victim of some one seeking revenge, his father, F. B. Hamilton, Birmingham, Ala., furniture dealer is quoted as saying.

Plainclothes Officers Lee W. Evans, and L. C. Whately, who have worked since the shooting in an effort to apprehend the murderer, are of the opinion, however, that robbery was the motive, and that the bandits, fearing capture after the noise of the pistol shots fled before taking time to rifle Hamilton's pockets.

Assumed Name Mystery.

One element of mystery upon which no light has as yet been shed is why should Hamilton have registered with the Southern hotel under the name of L. C. Jones.

While declining to divulge the name of the negro suspect they are holding, Officers Evans and Whately admitted that they had obtained valuable clues and additional arrests were promised.

The slain man's father stated that he came to Atlanta for the purpose of helping to clear away all mystery in connection with his son's death, and that he would spare no expense and no effort in seeing to it that the killing was probed to the bottom.

Cornor Paul Donehoo stated Tuesday afternoon that the inquest would likely be held Thursday morning over the body, which is at the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Lawrence Hamilton was fatally wounded by one of five bullets which were fired as he walked down East Third street, a short distance from Peachtree street.

He had just cautioned the proprietor of the Terrace Soda company, at Peachtree and Third streets, that two suspicious looking negroes were in all probability, preparing to hold up and rob the store. He then lit a cigar he had purchased and started down East Third street.

Several people saw the two negroes running immediately after the shooting, and furnished the police with a description.

DISORDER SPREADS IN BADEN PROVINCE

State of Siege Proclaimed at Loerback and Other Towns as Result of Communist Activities.

Berlin, September 18.—Communist disorders are spreading through the Provinces of Baden. A state of siege has been proclaimed at Loerback and several other towns.

Two men are thought to have lost their lives and $100,000 in property of the Sugar Pine Lumber company has been destroyed in Madera county by a fire that was all but under control tonight. Seven hundred men are on the fire line.

RADIO COMPASS IN PIVOTAL ROLE IN WRECK PROBE

San Diego, Calif., September 18.—In the maze of technical testimony presented at today's session of the naval court of inquiry investigating the wreck of seven destroyers off Point Honda, September 8, a radio compass on Point Arguello, not far from the scene of the crash, again played the pivotal role.

This time the need of the compass seemed to point toward a logical explanation of the disaster, and, according to officers prosecuting the investigation toward the person or persons on whom responsibility for the tragedy may be fixed.

Hamilton, who was shot to death at Peachtree and Third streets just after 9 o'clock Sunday night, is believed to have been the victim of some one seeking revenge, his father, F. B. Hamilton, Birmingham, Ala., furniture dealer is quoted as saying.

CHECK COLLECTION PLAN OF ATLANTAN MEETS REJECTION

Advisory Council Opposes Claiborne-Adams Suggestion and Favors "Regulation J" Amended.

NO ACTION IS TAKEN ON BRANCH BANKING

Par Clearance Situation Now Up to Federal Reserve Board—Time of Decision Is Uncertain.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, September 18.—Complete rejection of the so-called Claiborne-Adams check collection plan and adoption with changes of the federal reserve board's "regulation J," penalizing banks failing to remit at par, was recommended to the board tonight by the federal advisory council at the conclusion of its fall session.

The Claiborne-Adams proposal was put forward by Charles DeB. Claiborne, New Orleans, and L. R. Adams, Atlanta, and provides for par clearance within the limits of each reserve district. It was opposed by all members of the council.

The agreements were brought from Europe last week by Lloyd S. Tenny, assistant chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, who made a trip to Europe to obtain the signatures of the recent amendments that included the opinion that the plan is unsound, and therefore unanimously recommends its rejection by the the man with the pistol. Mrs. M. H. Roberts, of 126 Courtland street, was next called to the stand. She stated that she lived approximately one-half mile from the scene of the slaying and was seated on her front porch at the time. As she sat talking to her sister and a Mrs. Ivy her attention had been attracted to the four men standing on the corner. According to her, said one man, whose identity is not Stigall, stepped back and began firing. Stigall stepped upon Kirk as he was bending almost prostrate upon the ground. Mrs. Roberts declared. She also declared that she saw no weapons in the hands of any except Stigall. Mrs. Roberts stated that after Stigall had fired the last shot he "broke" his revolver and reloaded it, then stepped into an automobile.

Mrs. Josephine Purse, of 165 Juniper street, was an eye-witness of the shooting. Following Mrs. Roberts on the stand. She stated that she was a passenger on a Juniper-Courtland street car which had paused at the corner of Courtland and Houston streets while the motorman shifted the switch. She was sitting next to the conductor. At first her attention was attracted by the four men standing on the corner. When asked if they were gesticulating or behaving in manner which might have attracted her attention she replied, "I don't say they were merely in her line of vision."

Stigall had his back toward her, she stated, and only a short while after she had noticed them, stepped back and began firing. As Stigall began firing, one man threw some things he wanted me to do. Later I heard Kirk step up to his head and ran to hard Ellin street on Courtland street. Another ran down Houston street.

job, going to see Red Slaton, where the door of the car fearing that Stigall might turn the revolver in her direction. After the shooting had ceased, she testified, she remained near the scene, said Stigall reloading his revolver. She denied that no weapons appeared in the hands of the other three men.

Stigall Is Unmoved.

Through all the routine questioning of witnesses both by Solicitor John A. Howard, who conducted the prosecution, and Attorney Howard for the defense, Stigall portrayed no signs of emotion. Frequently he conferred with Attorney Howard apparently offering suggestions relative to interrogation of the witness, but he did not say Stigall's wife. The two rarely spoke throughout the afternoon.

A few feet away Mrs. Hanes, widow of the slain man, sat with her three children. She was heavily dressed.

As Kirk began his narration the court room was packed to capacity. Doorways were crowded and it was virtually impossible to gain access to the inner circle of the room.

Kirk identified a pistol, which he said Stigall used.

Attorney Howard asked the witness and began cross-examination.

"When you were discharged from the police department, you recused Stigall as being responsible, didn't you?" Attorney Howard asked Kirk, who replied that he had not.

"When asked if he had made a threat against Stigall's life, when the latter had found a quantity of whisky in a house which he previously raided, and reported that no whisky was there, Kirk asserted that he had 'never made a threat against a man in his life.'

"Did you tell May Hogan that you would get even with Stigall if you had to kill him?"

"No."

"Did you tell Berry, a taxicab driver, that you would frame Stigall and that he had gotten your job?"

"No."

"Did you tell Policeman Schilling that Stigall had cost you your job because you went upstairs at 7 Forrest avenue and failed to arrest a man for having a quantity of whisky?"

"I don't remember talking to Schilling at all about Stigall."

"Doesn't you enmity for Stigall go back as far as December, 1918, when Stigall was a witness against you on charges that you were in women's clothing, and such charges you resigned from the force?"

"Stigall wasn't a witness against me. I resigned because I had a job with the government."

Denies All Threats

Attorney Howard mentioned several persons, and Kirk whether or not he had told them that he was "going to get Stigall." Kirk answered in the negative to them all, frequently declaring that he had "never threatened a man in his life."

"When you saw Stigall and Hanes at the corner of Houston and Courtland streets, didn't you say: 'Well, we've got you at last?'"

"No."

When questioned concerning charges he had made against Stigall, Kirk stated that he had told Jesse W. Arnestead that Stigall was preparing to take some liquor he was going to use in a raid to a place on North avenue.

When asked what move Stanton made, Kirk said that he had pointed his finger at Stigall, saying: "We could get you on a warrant for threatening us." Stigall replied, Kirk declared: "I don't give a damn what you do," and then pulled out his pistol.

Kirk emphatically denied having been armed, or that either of his companions were carrying guns.

members have announced that they will oppose the special session plan.

Action of Governor Walton in lifting the ban on the state fair which is scheduled to open in Oklahoma City September 22 to 29, was the most important announcement of the day emanating from military headquarters here.

Officers Outline Work.

Tulsa, Okla., September 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Officers of the military commission appointed by Governor Walton in mid-August to investigate floggings in Tulsa county tonight outlined their work from the beginning to the present time in an interview granted the Associated Press in the presence of an official military commission.

More than one hundred cases of mob violence, some by hooded men, have come to the attention of the investigators, they said, and more than 3,000 pages of testimony have been taken for submission to the attorney general of Oklahoma.

Approximately 400 witnesses "who have experienced these floggings in one form or another" in Tulsa county, in most cases within the last six months, have appeared before the commissioners, the officers reported.

To date thirty men have been indicted by the filing of informations in the district court. One of the members of the commission declared in answer to a question as to when the investigation would be completed that the work would end "when the last man of the law breakers is in the penitentiary."

The military commission here is said by members to be the first to sit in the United States since the reconstruction period following the war between the states.

Of the thirty men indicted, six thus far have been granted preliminary hearings in the civil courts and all of that number were held in bonds for criminal trial.

Oklahoma City, September 18.—(By the Associated Press)—Governor Walton this afternoon withdrew his ban on the Oklahoma state fair, scheduled to open here Saturday.

A statement issued by Colonel Kew, in command of the military commission of the capital, announced that the chief executive, after conferences with a delegation of business men and officials of the city, has reinstated the fair.

The city authorities would make every effort to see that peace was maintained during the fair days.

More Marks Seized.

Coblenz, September 18.—A trillion marks were seized last evening at Essen by the inter-allied authorities. At Recklinghausen and Dortmund seven hundred billion were seized.

Noise From Street.

Outside, on the street, the noise of traffic interferes with the soft wailing from women's lips.

The judge raps for order, although the courtroom itself is silently intent. It seems incongruous, in all this hushed atmosphere, as a woman talks in a voice you have to strain to hear, to turn, on account of that same sympathy. It is the widow and orphans of the slain man, widowed and fatherless because of the shots which have sent her away, is accused of having fired.

There are few women in the court room. The packed rows of spectators are almost all men. By contrast, the women at the front, with the widows and orphans who follow each other to the stand, and a solitary woman taking notes at the press table, stand out as lonely figures, daring much to mingle in this man's affair.

SCHOOL LEADERS PLAN REVISIONS

Augusta, Ga., September 18.—Splendid cooperation in being given the movement of the state educational department to revise its work throughout the state. H. H. Ballard, state superintendent of schools, declared tonight after a regional conference of school, city and county officials had been held here.

Tomorrow, the superintendent and his workers are scheduled to hold a meeting in Statesboro; Thursday, they will meet in Waycross, and Friday in Tifton. One of the largest meetings of this series is to be held in Atlanta next Tuesday. Columbus, Albany, Americus, Molena, Macon and Augusta have seen scenes of meetings already held. Next Wednesday, the officials will meet in Atlanta. Friday, the entire three days will be in session in Rome and Blue Ridge respectively, bringing the conferences to a close.

"It seems to me very important that we should all be informed as to the new educational conditions and needs in the state as a whole and in the several counties," said Superintendent Ballard. "No educational policies should be formulated, or recommendations made, without this information. In order that this information may be obtained as soon as possible and at small expense, I have asked the state supervisors to discontinue their institute work. I am planning to have surveys made of a number of counties in the different sections of the state, beginning October 1."

"In order to secure the cooperation of superintendents and board members and to give them all information they may desire concerning the new work now undertaken by the department of education, we are holding these conferences," he asserted.

Following the conclusion of the conferences and the surveys, the superintendent is planning to start work on putting into effect the extensive changes he is formulating for the state, it was said.

The arrest was made by Detectives A. G. Stone and Hugh T. Brown who received a "tip" upon arrival of the couple, they stated. Montgomery had no comment to make upon his arrest.

FARM DEPARTMENT PROBE IS BEGUN

Taking of testimony in the investigation of the state department of agriculture is expected to begin this morning. At the opening session of the investigating committee, on Tuesday morning, eleven witnesses were ordered subpoenaed. Instructions were given that those out of town be notified by telegraph and it is expected that there will be a majority on hand when the hearing begins.

Among the eleven witnesses called are former Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, Walter Vance, warrant clerk during the Hardwick administration; Grover Edmondson, formerly connected with the Columbia militia during its publication by the late U.S. Senator Thomas E. Watson; Charles E. Stewart, member in the general assembly, from Atkinson; Gus Vason, of Atlanta; C. H. Kittrell, of Dublin, former member of the house of representatives; Sam Askew, clerk in the state pension department; J. M. Hilburn, of Atlanta, former employee of the department; Mrs. Alice Louise Pittman, of the Columbia Sentinel, and Parker St. John, former member of the house, from Laurens county; and Representative Bannister.

Lankford Chairman.
The investigating committee completed its organization at the Tuesday meeting by electing Senator George Lankford, of DeKalb county, chairman; Carl N. Guess, of DeKalb county vice chairman, and E. B. Dykes, of Dooly county, secretary.

The Tuesday session was featured by the appearance of Commissioner of Agriculture J. Brown, and his demand that all persons who have made charges against the department be subpoenaed as witnesses. The chairman assured Mr. Brown that all individuals he might request would be subpoenaed and if any failed to respond to their presence.

Stating that attacks had been made on his department over a period of six years, Commissioner Brown said that he was hopeful that the present investigation would result in making an end to the agitation. He said that the entire records of the department were at the disposal of the investigating committee and hoped that the members would look into every minor detail its administrative work.

Willing to Improve.

"The department is operated under laws created by the general assembly," he said, "and is very large and has extensive employees and a large number of employees on its payroll. Look into everything and if there is any way in which we can improve it, let us know."

After asking that the witnesses named be subpoenaed, Mr. Brown referred to the personal attack made against him on the floor of the house of representatives at the last session by Representative Stewart.

"Representative Stewart said that he was named as subpoenaed. Mr. Brown referred to the personal attack made against him on the floor of the house of representatives at the last session by Representative Stewart."

Saw Olive for Brown.

Sam L. Olive, of Augusta, former president of the state senate, was present as attorney for Commissioner Brown and the department. He said that the strike technicians as a procedure and the hearing of witnesses should be waived in order that there might be no obstruction to a thorough sifting of the testimony by the committee. He stated that the department was willing to answer any questions the committee might have and that which had been made against it, and its only request was the opportunity to confront its accusers before the committee.

Senator Lankford, chairman of the committee, said he thought the hearing could be concluded in a week or ten days, by holding morning and afternoon sessions daily. The committee asked that the newspapers of the state give the widest possible publicity to the fact that the investigation is now being publicized conducted, in order that all persons who had evidence they wished to submit might come forward.

Members of the committee, which was appointed under a joint resolution of the legislature, are Senator Lankford, Little, Smith and Green and Representatives Bennett, McGarity, Dykes, Howard, Calloway, Guess, Davis and Parker.

New York Papers Arrange To Issue Editions Today

New York, September 18.—Emergency cooperative measures were taken by the New York morning newspapers late Tuesday night, assuring each journal of pressroom staffs sufficient to publish at least two editions of the Wednesday morning papers, limiting to eight pages each.

The measures employed the services of the foremen of the various plants, who, under union rules are permitted to remain at work when the rest of the men strike.

Each edition will bear on its front page the names of all the papers co-operating, including the Herald, Times, World, Tribune, News and American.

At a late hour there was no definite indication that the men were preparing to return to work. Industrial leaders, and other officials, however, were understood to be exerting pressure for an end of the strike. Newspaper executives were confident that the strike would end shortly.

Composite Paper.

New York, September 18.—(By the Associated Press).—New York went without its leading newspapers for the better part of 24 hours yesterday when a strike of 2,500 web pressmen prevented publication of most of the city's morning and evening dailies.

An early edition of the New York Evening Post, run off by a hastily recruited corps of pressmen, was the only one of the large afternoon papers to appear before most of which had been exhausted, the newsstands usually loaded with frequent editions of the afternoon dailies, were bare, and hundreds of ravenous newspaper readers were turned away.

Newspapers in nearly New Jersey cities, smaller local papers not affected by the strike and foreign newspapers hastened to take advantage of the situation and run thousands of special editions of emergency news to boys to the more important traffic intersections where they are missing.

The Nichi Nichi, commenting on American assistance to Japan, says: "The kindness shown us will be long remembered by all Japanese."

One Boston newspaper sent copies of a special edition to the city by airplane while a local Italian paper, for the first time in its history, put on sale an all-English edition.

The newspaper famine was relieved in the late afternoon when a composite paper, representing the joint efforts of the 12 afternoon newspapers affected appeared on the streets. The unique publication bore the names of all the 12 newspapers in the usual typographical style used by each.

Strike Is Called.
President David Simons, of the United, declared that the walkout of the members had voted for the strike, which, he said, grew out of inability of the union and the publishers to agree to a working contract to replace the one which expired September 1.

The走者 announced through the publishers' association that the walkout was taken without due notice and was unjustifiable. George L. Berry, of the International, characterized the strike as illegal without the sanction of the International and in violation of the tri-partite agreement to arbitrate any differences which might arise between the international, local and publishing unions. He urged workers to return to work and served notice that the international would do everything in its power to help publish the New York dailies.

RUSSIA IS OFFERING BIG FARMING EXHIBIT

Moscow, September 18.—Salesmen and buyers from all parts of Europe flocked to the Moscow agricultural exhibit, in which Russia effectively demonstrated that she is back on her feet again.

The exhibition covers 100 acres. The exhibited buildings are extensive affairs, particularly the Turkistan and home industries pavilions.

The Russian government is using the fair for educational purposes, crowds of peasants are brought up from the provinces on special trains every day, to be divided into groups of fifty, and taken over the fair by a trained leader. Many homes, models of farms, machinery, improvements, and the latest agricultural machinery are explained to the astounded rustics, and the government thus hopes to spread knowledge of higher standards of living.

Atlanta Writers' Club Has Dinner At Burns Cottage

A Scotch dinner and entertaining literary addresses interspersed with songs and Scotch dancing featured the regular meetings of the Atlanta Writers' club held Tuesday night at the Robert Burns cottage.

A full Scotch effect colored the entire program, and the dinner was of Scotch dishes, prepared by members of the Robert Burns club. Dudley Cowles, president of the Writers' club, D. Anderson, of Macon; U. V. Whipple, of Cordele; James W. Morton, Athens; J. H. T. McPherson, of Athens; J. S. Peters, of Manchester, and Peter S. Twitty, the governor's personal secretary.

The governor and his party were entertained as the guests of the local Kiwanis club at a luncheon at the Armstrong hotel. Members of the local Rotary club were also present as guests.

A short afternoon session of the commission was held and the government and the commission met at 4 p.m. to discuss the tax bill.

The commission was to reach Atlanta in time to catch a train tonight for Augusta, where the second sitting of the commission is slated to be held, beginning tomorrow morning.

Not only the governor, but other members of the commission expressed gratification at the reception of the commission in this city. They were pleasantly surprised by the number in attendance and the general interest with both the interest shown and the spirit of fairness that seemed to characterize every address. There was, it was pointed out, no apparent effort to advocate the shifting of tax burdens to "the other fellow."

The governor and the members of the commission arrived at 8:30 o'clock this morning and were met at the antebellum home of George E. Maird, chairman of the committee on arrangements. In the party were Senator T. F. Mason, of Hart county, chairman; R. C. Ellis, of Troup county; Rep. J. E. Cline, of Carroll county; Rep. W. T. Carden, tax assessor of Floyd county, and P. Colgate, a "single tax" advocate.

Governor Speaks.
Immediately after the hearing opened Governor Walker spoke and summed up the state's tax difficulties, outlined the efforts that have already been made to straighten out the tax tangle, and explained what he hoped the present commission would accomplish. He expressed both the hope and the belief that legislation which will materially reduce taxation—even if it does not result in perfect tax legislation—will result from the commission's endeavors. He asked the help of all the citizens of Georgia in solving the problem.

WALT HOLCOMB TALKS ON CONFESSING SINS

"Confession means being sorry for sin," Walt Holcomb told the large audience in Wesley Memorial church Tuesday evening. At another of the revival services he is conducting nightly. The evangelist spoke from the text, "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

"If we don't confess, God won't forgive," the speaker declared. "Some folks speak of God 'meeting us half way.' In this text, He does more than that—He tells us to do one thing, and He promises to do two things—to forgive us sins which are a part of the revival are held each day at 12:30, lasting until 1.

Illustrating his assertion that sorrow for sin must precede confession, Holcomb cited the case of Frank DuPre, executed for murder in Atlanta a few months ago.

"It was plain that the poor boy never got to the point where he was really sorry for what he had done. He certainly will tell you it is almost impossible to get confessions out of men by putting them in the sweatbox, but if you are really sorry for your sins, confession will come."

"The trouble with many church members is that they are holding out on God—they haven't given up every last sin—and they haven't the peace of God in their hearts."

Tuesday noon's meeting at the Peachtree Arcade was largely attended. The doors of the church which are a part of the revival are held each day at 12:30, lasting until 1.

The subject at Wesley Memorial church tonight will be "Is There An Unpardonable Sin?" The song service begins at 7:30.

Is Your Account Appreciated or Tolerated?

Last Month's Account Pay It—NOW

It Will Keep Your Credit Good and Make Your Account Desirable

The Associated Retail Credit Men of Atlanta are conducting an advertising campaign to educate slow-paying customers in the fairness and importance of paying bills promptly when due.

Last month's account, per statement rendered on the 1st of this month, is due now. Whether you have paid such account or not, please read all this "ad."

Your credit standing is based upon the promptness with which you pay—not upon your intention of paying or your ability to pay—but the way you DO pay.

Many persons have been negligent and indifferent in the prompt payment of their bills, mainly because they do not realize the importance and fairness of being prompt. These people will respond to our explanation of the conditions which make necessary the enforcement of the prompt pay measure at the present time.

There are others, however, who believe that because they eventually pay their bills their accounts are desirable. They think a fancied superiority to ordinary mortals, because of prominence in business or social circles, releases them from their obligation of paying their debts promptly.

Such people think that they can assume the prerogative of saying how and when they shall pay their bills. Some of them (it is known), because of poor management of their personal affairs, buy more than they can pay for. Putting off payment from month to month, meanwhile buying more, allows the total to become almost unpayable. Such accounts soon become undesirable.

15 'May Queens' Will Sell Roses For Uncle Remus

Gratifying response to the announcement of the Uncle Remus Memorial Association, that it plans to hold a "Rose Day" in Atlanta on Monday, September 24, in order to raise funds for the purchase of a plot of ground for the permanent memorial to Mr. Remus, the Negro author of "Uncle Remus." Now it is proposed to buy the balance of the property, the "Snap Bean Farm" and make the memorial complete. The association can purchase this plot of ground for $5,000, to hold it open at a low price. This option, however, is about to expire and it is understood that if it is not taken up, a roadway will be opened alongside the Wren's Nest, into the land, and it will be cut up into building lots, and bungalows erected on it.

Wright Leading Citizens

Which it is believed, is a fate which every individual who ever read the immortal stories about Br'er Rabbit, Br'er Fox, the Tar Baby, etc. will see does not befall.

The campaign committee this week will send out letters to selected men of leading families of Atlanta, asking their cooperation and interest in this movement to save "Snap Bean Farm." It is planned, if the campaign is successful, to make the "farm" into a perpetual playground for children, and to have exhibits and pageants can be presented.

In connection with this pageant proposal, it is interesting to note that Mrs. Brevard Montgomery, who has directed the annual May day pageant which has been presented on this location ever since the Wren's Nest was purchased by the association, will be chairman of a special committee composed of the fifteen May Queens who will take active part in the campaign for funds on the downtown streets on "Rose Day."

Sparta, Ga., September 18.—(Special)—The second meeting of the Hickock County Boosters club had last night a larger and more enthusiastic turnout than the first held a week ago, the membership having more than doubled in a week's time. At the meeting last night an excellent address was made by Dan H. Updike, president of the Georgia and Western Georgia railroad, in which he stressed the spirit of cooperation among business men and farmers of the county. He also outlined plans for much work which can be done with the help of a local club agent, Prof. W. W. Driskell, prominent farmer, made a talk. Rev. J. R. Jordan, pastor of the Methodist church, commended the members of the club for their progressive spirit and the manner in which they had conducted the club last night to give a big barbecue for the farmers of the county in Sparta during fair week in October.

L. R. Garrett, chairman of the board of trade of the town of Hancock county, stated that a meeting would be held this week to decide on making an appropriation for a county agent for the county. He spoke very favorably of the plan.

Gasoline Prices Lowest in Years, Records Indicate

BY RALPH T. JONES.

After all, speaking gasolinically, things might be worse. Price of gasoline has been higher in Atlanta—considerably—and it is higher today in some places. Of course, then, again, on the other hand, it is lower in some other places. But that, it is understood, is largely a matter of freight rates and shipping facilities.

And, you know, if you dislike paying 20 cents in Atlanta, you can always move to—let's see that table a minute—well, Des Moines, Iowa, where they're filling the tanks at 15 cents. That is, if you want to live in Des Moines.

D'you remember what you paid for fuel for the old bus in 1921? No? Well, it was 33 cents. In 1922 it was 20 cents. In 1923, even, you have paid as high as 25 cents. So, the present price could be a whole lot worse, couldn't it? All the while owing to the fact that there's always be worse, and that there's no sense in kicking when steady improvement is the order of the day.

Here's a comparison of gasoline prices during the past three years in fifteen leading cities. Look 'em over and say, say, you're not glad that today is the good year of 1923, and not the year 1922.

These are prices as delivered to the retailer from the tank. Add about two cents to get the retail price.

HOW TO GET ON.—Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find.—Matthew 7:7.

CRIME IN ATLANTA.

Sunday a young white man, an ex-soldier in the world war, was murdered in the heart of Atlanta in the early part of the evening, in the glare of the electric lights and within a block of one of the city's largest and most fashionable hotels. The crime was supposed to have been committed by two young negro highwaymen. The fact that money and a watch were found in his pockets leads to the suspicion that some motive other than robbery was behind it. Perhaps the criminals were negroes; perhaps they were not. That question is subsidiary to the main question—where are the criminals? Why are the streets of Atlanta, fruitful places for open banditry?

A depot agent was killed a few days ago at his telegraph key at an Atlanta suburban station. By whom?

Almost nightly robberies are committed in the very heart of the city—in the most fashionable and populous residential sections. Where are the robbers? These criminals enter a home with the purpose to kill if necessary. The crime of burglary ranks close-up to that of capital offenses. In some states burglary is a capital offense. We hear of the crimes. Do we get the criminals?

The supply of furniture woods in the Blue Ridge mountains of Georgia is sufficient to supply as many factories as there are in North Carolina for a generation.

Then why not Georgia? Transportation, roads, the development spirit—these are factors that go a great deal farther than anything else.

The development spirit. The stabilization of taxes! The elimination of petty politics that grip the state! These are essentials before Georgia will ever measure up to her opportunities.

And these better conditions are coming. They are coming through an aroused public conscience to Georgia's bounden duty.

FAITH OF THE FACULTY.

One of the alarming trends of modern times is the development of agnosticism, or the equivalent, among the college and university professors of the country.

It has become so patent that the God-fearing people of the land—and a majority of the American citizens are God-fearing—are trembling at the consequences upon the youth of the nation, in tearing from under them the supports of faith that have for ages sustained the fathers before them.

Colleges and universities are supposed to be—and they should be if they are not—the very fountains of religious teachings, not as to creeds, but as to the great fundamental upon which faith in God, and the ideals of Christianity rest.

With a condition such as Dr. J. H. Leuba, professor of psychology at Bryn Mawr, has developed in his book, "The Belief in God and Immortality," existing—that is less than 50 per cent of college and university professors of scientific branches, in the survey made by him, believe in God—it is refreshing to find a college that advertises to the world "that every teacher, whether of science, language or humanities, and every officer believes in the scriptures as the Word of God."

Davidson college, in North Carolina—one of the oldest and most renowned institutions in the south, with a record that is remarkable for service, and for the building of mind and character, is such an institution.

One full page of The Constitution today is devoted to an announcement that is unique in advertising, illuminating in its revelations, and a powerful factor in heartening the Christian hosts of the land who point with pride to "the faith of the faculty."

Atlanta is a big city, and is expected to have crime, suggests some one. Certainly, but crime is to be held down to its lowest possible minimum through police efficiency, the quick apprehension of the criminals, and the quick and irresistible force of justice as an object lesson to others who would commit crime.

The way to encourage crime is to be inefficient or indifferent in the prompt arrest and conviction and punishment of those guilty of crime.

Perhaps the arresting authorities, including the Atlanta police force, are doing all within their power to keep Atlanta's streets clean and safe, and to protect society from the murderer and the bandit and the burglar and the speed demon. There is no indictment here against any official or group of officials.

The unvarnished fact is that too many offenders escape punishment in Atlanta—in every branch of law violations—and for this reason there is more crime in the aggregate in this territory than a normal situation would warrant.

INDUSTRY MOVING SOUTH.

The following significant article is from the financial page of the conservative and always reliable New York Times—

"The shift of the cotton industry from the north to the south may be followed by a similar movement in the furniture industry, according to railroad officials interested in the industrial development of the south. Recent figures compiled for the state of North Carolina show a remarkable increase in the volume of furniture business there, and it is pointed out that the day has arrived when North Carolina must be considered as one of the foremost furniture producers in the United States."

"Conditions similar to those causing the shift of the cotton industry from the north to the south are held to apply to the furniture industry. It is said that lumber is to be had in almost limitless quantities in North Carolina and labor also is cheap. On account of the shorter haul to the eastern coast markets industry in that section is also said to have a distinct advantage."

It is true. In almost every town and city in the Piedmont Carolina belt furniture factories are second in importance to cotton factories.

High Point has developed into a formidable city by reason of her furniture manufacturing interests.

And yet, the advantages in North Carolina for furniture manufacturing are in no respect superior to those in Georgia. Much of the hardwood that is utilized in the furniture factories in North Carolina is shipped from the mountains of North Georgia.

The supply of furniture woods in the Blue Ridge mountains of Georgia is sufficient to supply as many factories as there are in North Carolina for a generation.

Then why not Georgia? Transportation, roads, the development spirit—these are factors that go a great deal farther than anything else.

The development spirit. The stabilization of taxes! The elimination of petty politics that grip the state! These are essentials before Georgia will ever measure up to her opportunities.

And these better conditions are coming. They are coming through an aroused public conscience to Georgia's bounden duty.

Paul calls attention to this as the first commandment "with promise." Moreover, considering the age in which it was given, it is further remarkable that the "promise" is worthy of equal honor with the "father."

I have a friend, a race a Hebrew, by nativity a Hollander, and by naturalization an American—in all these relations a noble, true man.

He has reared an excellent family. Through the years past, he was often heard to say, "I'd rather see my children dead than disbelieved."

His desire was in perfect harmony with the fifth commandment. Disobedience to parents has no promise of long life.

In fact, every act of disobedience has in it the seeds of death.

Even nations illustrate this truth: the nation that, as a nation, has the longest life is China, whose whole life is built about this fifth commandment.

One reason why there is so much jealousy, envy and strife among individuals is that they consider in a personal way that they are the cleverest and best way to remedy the social ills.

To be at loggerheads with your neighbor is to break the social relationship. It causes a breach in the social polity. This social saying of Christ, if put into practice, will bridge the chasm.

One reason why there is so much jealousy, envy and strife among individuals is that they consider in a personal way that they are the cleverest and best way to remedy the social ills.

Christ wants us to live peacefully with another, not only that we may be saved as individuals, but that society as a whole may be saved from disintegration.

A prominent Christian said: "If thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hast against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift."

To be at loggerheads with your brother is the right personal relationship. To be at loggerheads with your neighbor is to break the social relationship.

It causes a breach in the social polity. This social saying of Christ, if put into practice, will bridge the chasm.

Colleges and universities are supposed to be—and they should be if they are not—the very fountains of religious teachings, not as to creeds, but as to the great fundamental upon which faith in God, and the ideals of Christianity rest.

The violators are sometimes apprehended, but more often they are not. If it is an unavoidable accident, or one with circumstances that extenuate the violator from serious blame, the arrest is made, because the driver held as responsible stops and does all within his power to atone for a distressing, and perhaps an unavoidable situation. More often, however, the drunken or criminally reckless offender escapes. And that is the last of it.

The crime situation in the Atlanta territory is getting to be more menacing every day.

Destroy the safety of the streets, through bandit or assassin or speed demon, and the guarantees of government is overthrown.

Perhaps it may not be wise, suggests someone, to give publicity to this situation. It would be extremely unwise not to do so. Better results may obtain by greater cooperation—by an aroused public conscience in the interest of law and order, and stricter enforcement of law. This cooperation cannot be obtained by a whispering, pussy-footing policy of suppression. The facts must be known in order to evoke a greater cooperation for law enforcement, and for a greater efficiency on the part of enforcement officers and their directors.

Atlanta is a big city, and is expected to have crime, suggests some one. Certainly, but crime is to be held down to its lowest possible minimum through police efficiency, the quick apprehension of the law who point with pride to "the faith of the faculty."

3 WOMEN INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

Memphis, Tenn., September 18.—Mrs. Florence Deboe, 35, and Miss Pearl Bushart, 18, were fatally injured and Miss Clara Shearon, 17, was less seriously hurt when an automobile said to have been traveling at a high rate of speed, plunged into a party of women and children returning from a church near Raleigh, a suburb last night. W. W. Arik and L. A. Gilbert were arrested today and placed in jail to await investigation of the accident. Both denied that they were in the car which struck the women. Mrs. Deboe was almost instantly killed. Miss Bushart died today.

According to persons in the party the automobile, after striking the three women turned and repassed the crowd on the roadways with its lights off. Death came to the girls due to the tread of the tires in the road for some distance and early today placed Arik and Gilbert under arrest at Raleigh.

Can Europe Hold Together?

Chapter IV.—If Britain Is to Live.
BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR

"What England and all of Europe need today is a moral gesture on the part of America." This is what Ramsey McDonald, leader of the opposition in the British house of commons, and thought by many to be the next prime minister, said to me a few weeks ago. Is this the solution?

Great Britain's industrial leadership was largely built on cheap coal. Her great merchant marine likewise rested on coal. Her imports were raw materials—heavy and bulky—and her exports the lighter manufactured articles. Thus her merchant marine carried to other countries vast quantities of cheap coal at low rates, in lieu of other ballast. In 1913, out of $23 million dollars' worth of raw materials exported, one amounted to $21 million. Her greatest coal customer was France. Now France has her own coal. England must look for other customers.

Her average monthly output of coal in 1913 was 24,342 tons. In 1922 it was 21,225 tons. Since the Ruhr invasion by France, Great Britain has been getting coal from Germany, but the effective supply there is decreasing.

Today she is mining 20 per cent less coal than in 1913 and it is costing nearly three times as much per ton as it costs to mine in the United States. Her increasing costs of both mining and transport are making an extremely difficult problem to handle.

Her iron and steel industry largely rests on cheap coal. She sells these things to Europe, but just now Europe needs more food than steel or iron. In 1913 Great Britain produced a monthly average of 1,518,000 tons of iron and steel, as against an average of 970,000 tons in 1922, a decrease of 30 per cent. Conditions during 1923 in these industries have somewhat improved but is it too heavy to carry?

Ship Building Falls Off.

The same general activities in the shipping and ship building industries are now demanding a levy on wealth to pay the domestic debt and disarmament to reduce the military expenses. This is at a time when the average man in England is finding the problem of paying his way harder than at any time in a century.

Railroads in Great Britain have 5 million too many mouths to feed, while British colonies have restricted immigration. So has the United States and other nations of the world. The longer the economic machine remains broken the larger will be this surplus population.

In the textile industry matters are not any better. In 1913 Great Britain exported 8 billion square yards of cotton piece goods. In 1921 not quite $3 billion, about 36 per cent as much; 1922 was better, but still the figure is less than 50 per cent of 1913. Recently, so far as I can find, is startlingly slow, and why?

This resume of Great Britain's condition is sufficient to show her return to national health will not come through national isolation nor through working out balance of power agreements with certain countries. She had the food and the raw material for such a kind of a policy. It will not come through reduction of expenditures and taxes, important as these are.

International markets are as yet to her social life. Rather it will come when the machinery of international politics is put in order and the world's economic front trade is extended to include the whole of Europe. Until then, the average man in England, worker, salaried man, farmer, manufacturer, will have a harder and harder time to just live.

New Garbage System To Be Aired Publicly At Meeting Today

Houses will be given an opportunity to express their opinion of the proposed revision of the city garbage ordinance at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, when the measure comes before the ordinance and sanitary committee of city council, according to a statement made yesterday by Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, chairman of the ordinance committee.

Final action on the new ordinance was postponed by council Monday, in order to give its opponents an opportunity to be heard. Among the provisions rejected, one which is said to be the requirement that garbage containers be placed on the curbing in front of residences at an hour to be specified by the sanitary department.

Immediately following the opening service tonight "Kol Nidre," a hymn which has been sung for countless generations, will again be sung. During this part of the service no one will be permitted to enter, after the service has begun.

Since the feast of the tabernacles, will be observed at 8 o'clock Monday evening, September 24, and at 10:15 o'clock Tuesday morning, September 25. This is the "feast of the harvest," a time for rejoicing.

REPORT ON HIGHWAY CLEARS DEPARTMENT

Clarksville, Ga., September 18.—(Special) — Considerable discussion has been aroused in Habersham by a presentation of the recent grand jury for surveying and engineering the state highway between Clarksville and Cornelia. A great deal of criticism was directed against the state highway department in the absence of a detailed statement. That statement has now been made public and the popular opinion is that the department has not only absolved itself from any just criticism, but the facts as developed strengthen the department.

A detailed statement from W. L. Neel, chief highway engineer for Georgia, shows circumstances quite different from those apparent before the grand jury when it made its report.

"General Offices, East Point, Ga., September 10, 1923.—To the Citizens of Habersham County: My attention has been called to a statement published in the Tri-County Advertiser, Clarksville, Ga., on September 6, 1923, in which it is asserted that the highway between Clarksville and Cornelia, which has made any real effort to pay her way, but even Britain cannot do the impossible. Possibly that is why Ramsay McDonald said what was needed now was a "moral gesture on the part of America" and then the solution?

"I would like to call attention to the fact that the expense items shown cover cost of surveys from Stephens County to Hall county; from Cornelia to Clarksville; from Habersham station to Habersham Mill and other areas. The total amount of surveys and improvements is $9,703.40, in addition to this the highway department paid for and turned over to Habersham county, without cost to the county, machinery consisting of a rock crusher, elevator and screen, ten ton road roller, two dump wagons amounting to $8,167.50 as listed under equipment in my report. These items amount to $17,870.90 as shown in the paragraphs of the above itemized statement.

"In the $17,870.90 list paragraph is shown the $42,240.48 which was paid from the federal government to the county on or before August 1, 1923, for work done by the county and contractors. Paid from the federal government prior to August 1, 1923 $42,240.48 Due to county, amount paid on August 1, 1920.21

Total paid and due August 1, 1920.21 Total value of work done by county and contractors up to Aug. 1, 1922 $122,521.38

"It is the above statement does not clear up the misunderstanding of the grand jury. I will gladly answer any questions relative to same. Yours very truly,

W. L. NEEL, State Highway Engineer.

With this letter Mr. Neel submitted itemized statement of each item. This has cleared up the matter and has satisfied many who were amazed at the grand jury report.

International markets are as yet to her social life. Rather it will come when the machinery of international politics is put in order and the world's economic front trade is extended to include the whole of Europe. Washington, September 18.—Ambassador Woods, at Tokio, handed to Premier Yamamoto yesterday a certified check for $1,000,000, as the first large installment of the relief fund for Japanese earthquake sufferers collected by the American Red Cross. In reporting to the state department, the ambassador said Premier Yamamoto was deeply moved at the evidence of sympathy and expressed his gratitude to the American people.

Reports of outbreaks in Japan were refuted by Mr. Woods, who transmitted the result of an inquiry made by Dr. Kibbe, an American physician doing relief work in Tokio.

Council Will Consider Traffic Remedies Friday

Radical changes in Atlanta's traffic laws will be considered by a special meeting of city council at 10 o'clock Friday morning at the city hall, it was announced Tuesday, following a conference between Mayor Walter Sims, Chief of Police James D. Beavers, Recorder George E. Johnson and officials of the Atlanta Safety council, with reference to local traffic conditions in the congested area.

The drastic revision of local traffic laws would include the designation of cross-town thoroughfares as one-way streets.

Renewal of the effort to create a night police court will also be another result of the conference, it was indicated.

"The report should also be made to the police, but no case would be made against a driver for the first offense," Mr. Paxton suggested.

"Then, if the driver persisted in breaking the same law, he should be brought to trial when it could be shown that he had been warned by the vigilance committee."

Would Teach Drivers.

Explaining that with the present force the police department cannot cover the city as thoroughly as it should be, Chief of Police Beavers recommended a campaign of education to be conducted so intensively that practically every motorist would be well posted on the city's traffic laws.

Additional of at least 35 or 40 men to the present traffic squad was urged by Recorder Johnson; introduction of a license system for drivers of motor vehicles, and designation of more streets as one-way streets.

His suggestion as to one-way streets was concurred in by Clarence Bell, of the safety council, who explained to the assembly that the designation of such streets as one-way streets would be a sensible solution.

Members of the Atlanta Safety council and officials of the police department will be present Friday when discussion of traffic conditions is taken up by the traffic committee.

Vigilance Committee.

A vigilance committee of 200 citizens, who would not hold police power, but who would take it on themselves to report violations of the traffic regulations, was proposed by F. J. Paxton, speaking on behalf of the Atlanta Safety council.

"I think that a member of the committee, when he sees a violation of the law by a motorist, should report the license number to the Safety council secretary, who would send the violator a car, telling him he had been a certain law and warning him not to repeat the offense," Mr. Paxton suggested.

"The report should also be made to the police, but no case would be made against a driver for the first offense, so reported."

The new physics building which has been under construction for the past year is completed. It will be occupied this year by the physics department, on the two lower floors, while the architectural department will have possession of the third and fourth floors.

A new building is being planned for the ceramics department, for which provision has been made by the general assembly and a number of private citizens of the state.

When completed, the new building will be made for the department in some other structure on the campus. Work in the new department is expected to begin next January. In addition to the $100,000 to be paid by the state, private donations have reached the total of $9,500, according to Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Tech.

"With the great amount of fine clay to be found in Georgia, the help that Tech can give in utilizing these natural resources," said Dr. Brittain, "the industry can be developed to such an extent the navy could possibly be built by it in the near future in the state."

BOBBY JONES WINS AFTER STIFF FIGHT WITH COCHRAN

Wichita Falls Golfer Loses Match on 35th Green, 2-1; Chick Evans Loses to Hunter

Atlanta Entry Plays Wonderful Golf During Afternoon, After Bad Start in Morning Round—Evans' Defeat Big Surprise.

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY,
(Sports Editor, The Constitution)

Flossmoor Country Club, Ill., September 19.—(Special)—Thomas B. Cochran, of Wichita Falls, Texas, earned the right to be known in future as the "Luis Firpo of Goldfond" over this course when he carried Bobby Jones, national open champion to the 35th green, before going down in the first round of match play in the national amateur championship tournaments.

Bobby's margin was 2 up and 1 to play and was created only by the sort of golf that is likely to stop any competitor in his tracks. Cochran's caddy is wearing the lath distinctly on the dopesheets, who had presumed in their pre-match yarns that Bobby was being given something as easy to solve as two and two. Cochran's poor play in the morning round was the expert's opinion and he was not crushed before lunch simply because Bobby was playing miserable golf.

But in the afternoon the situation was far different. With no style at all, apparently jerking his club out of line on the swing upward and all appearances completing the effort by a plainly evident jerk in the follow-through, Cochran had a run strung along with the open-champion up the green and then used masterly putting to keep in the running all the time, actually going out in front early in the final round.

Bobby was leading one up at the end of the morning round.

Atlanta Delegation Uneasy.

Uneasiness seized upon the Atlanta delegation. They had seen miracle rounds before tossed at their idol and there is no question about Cochran's play being regarded as miraculous. He is one of the finest fighters we have ever seen in action, but he was shooting away above his head and admitted it.

"All I wanted to give him," Cochran told his correspondent, "was a good battle. It never dawned on me that I would go up 2 up to say so many tickled in putting it lighter. He is a great sportsman and the finest golfer on earth. I learned lots of things during the bout and am completely satisfied."

Anybody but nine holes to play in that section of the gallery composed of Atlanta spectators had a number on hand, was far from being on top of the world at the end of the afternoon's first nine, we begin to see. Bobby could match shots with a man, and suddenly started playing as if he had been touched with the wand of the fairy who hands out golf we dream about. And Bobby won because he had the courage and the skill to pull it through. This time Bobby outplayed the oddsheets, who had predicted a big surprise.

Would Always Come Back.

Cochran is the "Firpo of goldfond" because like the South American, he would persist in coming back after defeat, and was a lesser physically able to respond to the dictates of his brain. He was floored on the first side when Bobby won three holes in a row, but he came back stronger than ever and at the start of the second side was not even with Bobby until he started playing as if he had been touched with the wand of the fairy who hands out golf we dream about. And Bobby won because he had the courage and the skill to pull it through. This time Bobby outplayed the oddsheets, who had predicted a big surprise.

Evans Eliminated.

Just as startling was Jones' run to the form which he has exhibited since his arrival in Atlanta. He had expected, however, that Chick Evans, now that Chick Evans has passed out of the picture, would be 2 up and 1. Had Bobby played during the morning and afternoon near so well as he did in the afternoon, the courageous Texan would have taken the count shortly after lunch.

Where Bobby was frequently off the tee in the morning, he was extremely accurate with tee shots in the afternoon, keeping them straight and leading his opponent on every hole where distance meant anything.

The hook which marred Bobby's work during the first incomplete day was a bad one, and second, and he looks to be in the right trim for the stern opposition, which will be his for the rest of this tournament.

We hope he has better luck with his putts in the afternoon round. For 17 holes played in the afternoon round, Bobby had 34, exactly two to a green, taking three putts on the sixth and three on the ninth. Cochran took 30 putts for a win, and five holes when Bobby was standing closely by for a certain hole.

Bring Bobby to Senses.

This writer firmly believes that Cochran's brilliant play in the afternoon was the thing to bolt Bobby to the realization that he would have to play his best game or go out of the competition. And we don't think Bobby was convinced that the situation was as bad as it was. Cochran clipped off a birdie two on the second. Making two of these in a row, he having negotiated the long number one, in a stroke better than par.

On the first hole of this round Bobby had displayed a tendency to loaf along as they had done during the morning, if Cochran were so inclined, but when the Texan put his tee shot on the short, set out with a vengeance to "wreck" it, because evidently that was at the top of his mind.

The afternoon round convinced Bobby's supporters that he is about through with indifference and that he looks to be in the right trim for the stern opposition, which will be his for the rest of this tournament.

Will Meet Marston.

Inasmuch as today's presumably easy path was paved with thorns for Bobby, we are not going to offer any predictions on what will take place tomorrow when Bobby meets Max Marston, of Cleveland, in the final round.

Bobby scores a 73 as he did this year, and Martin is 72. Marston is certainly in a position to take any shot he wants, and he has semi-finalists, unless he will meet any very stern opposition until the semi-finals, unless, of course, the third round enemy gets away with this miracle stuff. Then it will be a toss up. Anyway, Bobby is of the belief that he can't help running into this sort of round again.

ELIMINATED FROM AMATEUR TOURNEY

Chick Evans, veteran Chicago golfer, and picked as one of the favorites for the national amateur tourney now being played over the court of the Flossmoor Country Club, was eliminated yesterday by Tom Hunter, 7 and 6, in the western title eight match and is the only one left.

Play With Exception of Evans

Chicago, September 18.—(By the Associated Press)—After a day of hectic golf that threatened extinction of the amateur tourney, all the national and former national champions survived the first round of match play at 36 holes in the national amateur championship at Flossmoor, except Chick Evans, of Chicago, who was eliminated by Willie Hunter, of Los Angeles, formerly British titleholder, 2 and 1.

Only three of the matches were one-sided, including the overwhelming victory of the titlist, Jess Sweetser, of New York, who defeated Charles E. Held, of St. Louis trans-Mississippi champion, 10 and 9. George Von Elm, of Salt Lake City, formerly Mississippi champion, downed Captain E. C. Carter, of Chicago, formerly Irish champion, 8 and 7, by shooting the first round in 70 or three better. Chick Evans, the only easy match went to H. K. B. Davis, of San Francisco, who beat George Blossom, of Chicago, 7 and 5.

The national champion, Bobby Jones of Atlanta, did not have an easy time winning from T. B. Cochran, of Wichita Falls, Texas, 2 and 1. Chick Evans, of Georgia, was down to the Texan, but Cochran never got a commanding lead.

An even narrower escape was the experience of Jess Sweetser, of Boston, titleholder three years ago, for Louis Jacoby, of Dallas, not only held seven for 18 holes, but after losing in the first, got a stroke on the ninth, yielded no further, and Boston to the 36th green where he won 1 up by halving that hole.

Minton Makes Come Back.

Francis Gulmet, of Boston, the tamer of Vardon and Ray in 1913, won the morning round to Anthony Haines, of Rockford, Ill., being 1 up and 2 and 1. Max Marston, kept Philadelphia champion, of St. Louis, retained a chance to make St. Louis a championship city by overcoming Francis Blossom, of Chicago, 3 and 2.

In the second round Gulford will meet Cummings. Heron will play Sweetser. Shute will face Allis and Fowles will try his skill against Gardner in the upper half. In the other half the bracket Marston will play Wells will compete with Ojima, Ogimura, with Hunter and Marion with Von Elm.

Many of today's spectators followed Bobby Jones for the sodden course, which an overnight rain had made, but he was not in gallant shape when he hit two holes on the first nine and was even with him at the end of 18 holes. Heron got a lead of 2 up on the third nine and increased it to 5 and 4. The seventh nations title went to the contest. W. G. Fowles of Pittsburgh, held the lead all day.

Tony Hunter, of Atlanta, who had a birdie two on the 17th, holing out for a win, had a fine birdie when Bobby was standing closely by for a certain hole.

WILL TEACH BOXING AGAIN

BY BILL MORROW.

Aiming particularly at the physical development of the students not taking part in any of the major sports, boxing will be added to the Oglethorpe list of activities again this year and it is understood that a large number of the male attendants at the Petrel's institution will take advantage of this opportunity to learn something of the art.

Another former champion to go through today's play was Dave Heron, of Chicago, who won the title three years ago by defeating Bobby Jones in the finals at Oakmont. He was 1 up and 2 and 1. Chick Evans, a Chicago youth, who led Heron by two holes on the first nine and was even with him at the end of 18 holes. Heron got a lead of 2 up on the third nine and increased it to 5 and 4. The seventh nations title went to the contest. W. G. Fowles of Pittsburgh, held the lead all day.

Scrimmages Between Jacket Teams Continue Each Day

Henry Reeves Added to Injury List—Strains Ligaments in Shoulder. Martin Shows Up Well.

BY JOHN STATION.

The battle at Grant Field goes on and on. Yesterday, Coach Alexander's team scored a victory, while Oglethorpe's nine-man met in what was said to be the first intercollegiate boxing contest in the south. The show was well attended and the sportsmanship was of the highest caliber, sufficient to warrant the matching of other contests that fall.

Coach Alexander's rush line cracked up with Poole at center, Glick with Poole at center, Glick with Poole at center, and Merle tackled and Marshall and King ends. The backfield was composed of Godwin quarter, Harris and Albright, halves, and Reeves fullback.

From standpoint of tight play, this scrimmage beat them all, for neither team had the decided advantage. But looking at the play from the standpoint of proper execution of football, it was not so good.

There was considerable fumbling which certainly was avoidable. Many times a perfect pass would be barked when the runner started before the ball reached him. The varsity combination was especially loose and erratic. Times again, again their runs and runs would bring the ball to the ten-yard zone with four down. Then the first string team would fumble, the ball would invariably be recovered by a scrub, and all hope of a touchdown would be dashed.

Backfield is Careless.

Backfield men were careless about picking their holes. The line was functioning well, but many times the backfield men refused to run through the line when they were open. But it must be recited that the damage is early in the season, and there is yet abundant time for improvement.

Must Have Reserve Strength.

They will need at least four good men for the pivots this year. Two have been mentioned. Carpenter, Caldwell and Bell will fight it out for two places.

Henry Reeves got a pretty bad rap on defense, but he is in excellent condition. He is in better shape than he was last year, and is every inch a hundred pounds, and is every inch a good fullback. He possesses a good foot hand, and can retain skills well. There is no reason why he should not come through this year.

BELGRADE FEARS FIUME IS LOST

Russia Necessary For World Peace
Declares Bishop

Belgrade, September 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Notwithstanding the assurances given by the Italian charge d'affaires that the dispatch Of General Girardino to Fluraes the military governor had not affected the status of Fiume, the feeling in this city was that the facts of the case are as accurately expressed by the new Italian headlines as "Italy annexes Fiume," Italy annexes first negotiates afterwards," and everybody is asking whether mobilization has been ordered.

Yet the uneasiness is being increased by the absence of any official statement after a two-hour cabinet session last night. Deputy Foreign Minister Caviglia said, "I am not of the fact that the occupation is officially admitted by Italy, expressed the opinion this morning that the act did not constitute annexation, Italy expressly denying alteration in the status of Fiume."

General Girardino, it is recalled here, has been a determined opponent of the Hugo-Slavic Russian church in Moscow last May, and made several statements regarding the soviets and Russia in general, which aroused world-wide interest.

"My sentiments on the soviet situation express those of the Moscow council have not changed," he said.

"Insofar as the soviet government may abominate their principles and their practices but we cannot ignore them. The sooner America and Europe recognize this perfectly obvious fact the better it will be for Russia and for the world."

Worldwide Interest.

Bishop Blake attended the conference of the Orthodox Russian church in Moscow last May, and made several statements regarding the soviets and Russia in general, which aroused world-wide interest.

"We may not like the soviets," said Bishop Blake, who came here to attend the semi-annual conference of bishops to be held in Brooklyn in November, "but we can't ignore them. The world's affairs without Russia are not like the soviets and we may abominate their principles and their practices but we cannot ignore them. The sooner America and Europe recognize this perfectly obvious fact the better it will be for Russia and for the world."

The crowd shouted: "We want annexation," to which Girardino replied: "Now is not the time for that."

Crowds of Fascisti marched through the streets in the evening, shouting for Italy and annexation.

OFFICERS ABSOLVED FOR FIRING ON CAR

Huntsville, Ala., September 18.—(Special) S. L. Worley and Claude Gray, deputies of sheriff's force, were absolved of blame Monday afternoon after evidence was heard in the charges of assault with intent to murder in shooting at a car driven by Mrs. Ranson Jaco about three weeks ago. Lt. Col. W. M. Gray and Capt. Warden Earl Brown, who were in the party of deputies and charged with the same offense, were held to the grand jury under bonds of $500. The officers claim they thought the car driven by Mrs. Jaco was a lynch car, for which they were watching on one of the pikes leading into Huntsville.

John Doe Speaks "Carolina Negro Talk Tongue-Tied"

New York, September 18.—The Russian soviet government is unquestionably one of the strongest governments in Europe at the present time, Bishop Edgar Blake, of the Methodist Episcopal church, stated today, upon his arrival in New York, where he has chosen the work of the church in southern Europe.

Smiling Prisoner Helps To Upset Story of Witness

White Plains, N. Y., September 18.—Far from being downcast by Attorney General Sherman's pungent opening for the prosecution, Waller S. Ward, fresh, smiling, confident and more keenly on the alert than ever, directed the attack Tuesday that partially upset the testimony of the second witness called against him.

Aften Duncan Rose, of Chappaqua, had testified that he was the first man to find the dead body of Clarence Peters beside the White Plains- Chappaqua bridge in November, H. G. Green, a state trooper, introduced himself as a man who had spent seven years perfecting his memory, with the aid of various devices.

For 30 days John Doe was a ward of probation officer of the bridge plaza court, having been picked up by the New York City Probation officer couldn't understand his language. Then the comedy began.

What the defense desired to do was to get the trooper to admit that Peters' vest was buttoned, while a bullet had torn through his shirt and skin underneath it—and yet the vest contained no bullet holes.

Apparently, the prosecution contended, some one had buttoned Peters' vest after he was dead.

With a half-smile on his lips, Ward responded. Attorney Campfield and whispered a series of questions which Green was called upon to answer when he had described his recollection as to the body's condition.

The Faith of the Faculty You Should Know It!

IDE SPREAD publicity has been given what is termed the capture of our colleges by the "liberal" or "modernistic" school of thought as concerns religious belief. Reference is made to this in "The War in the Churches" in The World's Work for September.

Dr. J. H. Leuba, Professor of Psychology at Bryn Mawr, has given astounding figures as a result of what he calls a thorough and thoroughly scientific survey of the religious faith of our most eminent scientific men, in his book "The Belief in God and Immortality," published in 1921. The thousand men questioned by him were chosen from "America's Men of Science" containing fifty-five hundred names, by chance selection. Approximately half of those addressed answered the questionnaire. Of this number 289 were College or University Professors. His findings were that of these Professors only 46 3-10% believed in God, 53 7-10% were Agnostics or Unbelievers, while 55 3-10% believed in immortality and 44 7-10% professed a lack of belief or disbelief.

At Davidson College These Figures Do Not Obtain

The following statement of the faith of its faculty is published over the signature of its President:

I am glad to say from personal knowledge that every teacher, whether of science, language or humanities, and every officer connected with Davidson College, believes in the Scriptures as the Word of God, in God as a personal being infinite in all His attributes, in Jesus Christ as the Son of God and very God and in his virgin birth, in His atonement for sin through His sufferings and death; in Him as the only possible source of salvation, and in His infinite power and desire to serve. Furthermore, I am glad to testify that their lives bear out this statement. None others would or could be retained in the service of Davidson.

For years, so far as I have known the facts, over 95 per cent of our students have actually been members in good standing in some Evangelical Church on entrance, and most of the remainder have become Church members before graduation.

W. J. MARTIN, Pres.

There are twenty-seven members of this faculty (excluding R. O. T. C.). Of this number twenty-three have degrees superior to the Bachelor's degree. Nineteen of them have Master degrees and there are nine Doctors of Philosophy, two Doctors of Divinity, one Doctor of Medicine and one Civil Engineer. The student enrollment is five hundred and ninety.

GREASY FOOD

Boatman suffered from Indigestion, But by Taking Black-Draught, Says He Got So He "Could Eat Anything."

Stephensport, Ky.—"For some time I suffered with indigestion, or dyspepsia," says Mr. Henry Gross, of this place. "I couldn't eat the least thing greasy—if I did, I would spit it up. I suffered a great deal."

Since his work requires him to be on an Ohio river steamboat much of the time, Mr. Gross says that he "had to eat at different places, and I suffered because I had to eat so particular to get something that wouldn't hurt me. I had a hurting in my stomach, and a sick, bitter taste in my mouth. Some one suggested a liver medicine. I began with Black-Draught and it has given perfect satisfaction. I took a pinch after meals and it regulated me. I got so I could eat about anything and enjoy it. Black-Draught did all right."

A sample of Black-Draught, taken for a few days at a time, after meals, washed down with a swallow of water, has, in thousands of cases, relieved simple indigestion. As a result of the action of the medicinal roots and herbs which make up Black-Draught gently stimulates the flow of the digestive juices, and helps to relieve, or prevent constipation, in an easy, natural manner. Try it. 25c.

BEAUTY CHATS

COMFORTABLE FEET.

I can already begin to notice the effect of the new shoe fashions in my correspondence. At one time, one letter in the others was entirely about foot troubles, or at least mentioned uncomfortable feet and asked about corn and bunion treatments. Now there is much less said about them. It's due to a combination of French and English influence. Back in 1914 I was one of the first to see the French fashion begin, for back in 1916 the buyer of one of the smartest shoe houses in New York showed me some shoes he had just brought back from Paris. They were very comfortable shoes, the heels were one good balance on short vamps, rounded toes. He copied them, modifying the toe a little, lowering the heel a trifle, and everyone began buying them in preference to the long vamp, pointed toe shoes.

English sports shoes began to be seen, too, low of heel, sane of toe, though badly formed by our standard of boot-making. It was the effect of the war. But the round toe won out, perhaps more from the wearing of points, and sensible ones fitting of discomfort. The low heel won out, too! We all love to be different every now and then. So at last, we're approaching a fashion that is really good for our health. When last in New York, the very best dressed girls wore only these simple, round-toed styles. It won't last, of course. But it has years to run yet.

Syracuse, Sicily, Sept. 18.—(By The Associated Press)—A violent earthquake shock was felt here at 7:30 o'clock this morning.

The entire island of Sicily is situated, has been frequently shaken by violent earth shocks, many of which have proved highly destructive to life and property. Syracuse lies on the east coast, opposite the ancient site of ancient Syracuse, which was a great center of Greek culture and long the capital of the western Hellenic world, reaching the height of its greatness about the beginning of the fourth century, B. C. The present town is built on the site of the ancient, a diminutive island connected with the mainland of Sicily by a mole. The population is somewhat in excess of 25,000.

Sicily is about 75 miles south of Messina, which was almost totally destroyed by an earthquake in 1908 with heavy loss of life. It lies now about 50 miles on an air line southeast of Etna.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones, ones that just die, go away by a simple method that just does them. To do this get about two ounces of white sugar and add a few drops of spirinolite on a hot, wet cloth over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds. Then wash off. The blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin, and the pores will right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition. (Adv.)

Attempt to "Traffic"
In Crime Sentences

Judge John D. Humphries of the Fulton superior court, Tuesday morning, represented Attorney Paul Carpenter for an "accused" plaintiff in the case of Zane Grey, who is seeking to have passed on J. L. (Lem) Gleason, confessed spy for the Floyd Woodward "bungo" syndicate, who was sentenced Tuesday morning to serve from two to five years in prison. Judge Humphries declared that he resented "traffic in sentences" saying that no such agreement would be tolerated by the court.

Attorney Carpenter entered a plea of guilty for his client, but following a successful effort to withdraw the plea on the grounds that he had been led to believe that Gleason would be given a light sentence in exchange for his plea of guilty and assistance in tracking down the conspirators.

Reports that Judge Humphries had lectured Solicitor General John A. Borkin for being a party to the alleged agreement were denied Tuesday night by both Judge Humphries and Attorney Carpenter, who explained they had agreed to recommend Gleason for the clemency of the court at some future time in case Gleason should give the promised assistance in locating a fugitive wanted by the United States courts.

Judge Powell Defends Ad Valorem and Fee Systems in Georgia

Adherence to the fundamentals of the old 1865 constitution of Georgia was urged by Judge Arthur Powell in an address at the weekly luncheon of the Lions' Club. He urged the retention of the ad valorem system of taxation as "the only fair and just method of taxation."

Judge Powell argued himself as being in favor of the fee system of payment for county officers, but added that in the larger counties, like Fulton, the percentage of fees paid to the tax collectors and tax assessors should not be as high as at present.

While referring to the state's tax situation Judge Powell stated that the state should designate a force of officers whose duty it would be to bring to light wealth now "invisible" and that it is properly taxed.

THE GUMPS—AN EXPENSIVE BIRD

BLACK MONEY

By J. S. Fletcher.

Next Week: "DANCERS IN THE DARK."
By Dorothy Speare.

"I did. He was in serious conversation with a tall, handsome woman."

"Oh, you saw that, did you?" said Hetherwick.

"Well, that woman was Lady Riversende!"

"Oh, I guessed that!" remarked Matherfield.

"But that wasn't all."

From what I heard from Flowers, I've no doubt that Hannaford was at Vivian's once, if not twice, during the two or three nights before his death. Any way, Flowers recognized my description of him—which I'd got, of course, from you and the papers."

"Hannaford!" exclaimed Hetherwick.

"Alone?"

"No—with this Baserville. They don't know him as Dr. Baserville

there, though. Plain Mister."

"Go there again tonight," directed Hetherwick, "and try to find out if that friend of yours knows anything of a tall man who corresponds to the description of the man whom Hannaford was seen to meet at Victoria. Particularly if such a man has ever been seen in Baserville's company there."

At noon Hetherwick journeyed once more to Paddington and knocked at the door of the house wherein he and Matherfield had kept watch.

"Do you happen to know by sight a tall, handsome woman who has a flat opposite?" asked Hetherwick of the lodgings house keeper, "a woman who's likely to be very well dressed?"

"I think I do know the lady you mean," the man answered. "Goes out with one o' those peaky little poms-on-a-head? And you Matherfield after her?"

"Not exactly," answered Hetherwick. "What I want to find out, now, is her name, the name she's known by here, anyway."

"Look in the Papers Tonight."

"I can soon settle that for you," said the lodgings house keeper with alacrity. "I know the caretaker of those flats."

He left the room, and a moment later Hetherwick saw him cross the road and descend into the basement of the flats. Within a quarter of an hour he was back, and evidently primed with news.

"Soon settled that for you, Mister!" he said. "You know whom you meant! The lady's name is Madame Listorelle. He thinks she's something to do with the stage."

Hetherwick was now convinced that Lady Riversende, for some purpose of her own, kept up a flat in Paddington, visited it every day, and was known there as Madame Listorelle.

How much was there in that, and what bearing had it on the problem he was endeavoring to solve?

He was thinking things over late that night when Matherfield entered and hauled himself into the nearest easy-chair.

"For heaven's sake, Mr. Hetherwick, give me a drop of whisky!" he exclaimed. "I'm dead beat—and dead disappointed, too! Such a day as I've had after that!"

Hetherwick helped his visitor to a chair and soda. "Ally, I hope it wasn't a wild-goose chase?" he said.

"That's just about what it does come to!" exclaimed Matherfield. "She got clear away, practically under my nose! I followed her to Waterloo station, where she had asked for a first class to Southampton."

"Southampton?" asked Hetherwick. "Um!"

"Southampton!" repeated Matherfield. "First single for Southampton. She took the ticket and walked away, looking right and left, as she glanced at me. Well, after a minute's thought, I booked for Southampton—third. Then I went out and looked at the notice-board. 'Southampton—five-fifty.' It was then five twenty-five. The train came down ten minutes later. I watched her get off and I got into a smoker, a smoke down. I was going wherever she went!"

"Even out of the country?" asked Hetherwick.

"Aye, I thought of that," assented Matherfield. "We might be slingin' her back for anything I know. The Tartarie was due to leave Southampton for New York about two o'clock that very afternoon. If she really is the Mrs. Whittingham of the Selithwaite affair, ten years ago, she'll be liable to arrest—prosecution and conviction; she'll probably know too, that this Hannaford affair has somehow drawn fresh attention to her little matter, and that she's in danger?"

Again, Baserville may have been mixed with her in this.

"You think this woman was making off with a hint from Baserville?" asked Hetherwick.

"Put it this way," replied Matherfield: "Of course you're got to assume a lot. Lady Riversende was certainly Mrs. Whittingham. As Mrs. Whittingham she did a clever bit of fraud at Selithwaite, and got away with the swag. Baserville was her accomplice. Now, then, ten years later, Mrs. Whittingham has become my Lady Riversende, a very wealthy woman. She suddenly visited by Baserville at Riversende and she is obviously upset. Then she starts for a port—Southampton. What inference is to be drawn? That her visit to Southampton has certainly something to do with Baserville's visits to her and her visit to Vivian's?"

"Go on!"

"Very good train, that," continued Matherfield. "We got to Southampton just before eight—minute or two late."

"She went to the White Star Line office and I waited outside where she would see me when she came out again. When she came out, she turned to another part of the town. And I lost her—altogether. I just happened to let by attention be diverted—and she was gone! I hung about: no good. Then I thought I'd find out what she'd gone to the White

JUST NUTS

Star offices for, so I got hold of a clerk, showed my credentials, and asked him for the information I wanted. I got it.

"She'd booked a second-class passage for New York in the Tartarie, I think that's the name of H. Cunningham, and I made the arrangements for her coming aboard the Tartarie. I proposed to accost her, of course, as Lady Riversende, tell her who I was, and ask for information about Baserville. If she gave me any promising signs, I'd elb answer, I'd ask her straight out if she was Mrs. Whittingham. And I practically made up my mind, too, that if she admitted that and I saw good cause for it, I'd detain her."

"But she never turned up! Of course, I knew that she must have slipped aboard unobserved by me, but I'm positive she didn't. No, sir! It's my opinion that she thought better of it and didn't go—forfeiting her passage money would be nothing to a woman of her means—or that she was frightened at the last minute of showing herself to me."

"I'm not through with this yet. Mr. Hetherwick, and I want you to do something for me. This Miss Hannaford, now, is down at Riversende Court. I want you to ring her up early tomorrow morning and ask her if she can meet you in Dorking at noon."

"I can fix it up all right," answered Hetherwick. "But don't know what you want her for."

"Wait till morning," replied Matherfield with a knowing look. "You'll see. I'll meet you at Victoria station at ten o'clock sharp."

"Hetherwick was still in ignorance of the fact that Matherfield's desire to see Rhona was what they met her in Dorking. Matherfield lost no time in getting to Dorking.

"He was a retired army man. Miss Hannaford's thoughts is in love with Lady Riversende," said Hetherwick. "Go on."

"Major Penteney?" demanded Matherfield.

PIGGLY-WIGGLY CHIEF ON STAND

Memphis, Tenn., September 18.—Clarence Saunders, testifying today before a federal master in chancery in the hearing of his petition for the appointment of a receiver for the Piggy Wiggly corporation, parent Piggy Wiggly organization, declared that authority to engage in marginal stock operations was given him by the executive committee of the corporation April 22, 1922.

Saunders' sensational attack on "short sellers" of Piggy Wiggly Stores, Inc., stock on the floor of the New York stock exchange last April was the forerunner of an aftermath which reached such a climax when Saunders stepped from the presidency of both the corporation and the stores company and filed application for a receivership, now being heard.

Saunders declared at one time, in Federal of last year, he was authorized to borrow $500,000 to help in operating the business and that at a meeting last February he was authorized to borrow $1,000,000 from Nashville financial interests.

Saunders contends that in his efforts to raise money he sold out of the stores organization which he undertook to sell through the Piggy Wiggly Investment Company he was acting as the agent for the corporation.

Rogers Caldwell, of Nashville, president of a firm of investment bankers, was called to the witness stand after Saunders had testified as to the authority given him to obtain loans and told of an agreement he had reached at a meeting with the executive Feb. 1, 1922, to this year to negotiate a loan through the American Trust company, American Securities company and the Bank of Tennessee, all of Nashville, for which $1,500,000 of Class B stock of the Piggy Wiggly Stores, Inc., was offered as security.

Caldwell said: Saunders told him one broker had bid a million and a half on the stock and that he had looked over the earnings of the stores for the previous year and the figure was $1,000,000.

In answer to questions Caldwell said he would not have negotiated the loan, however, if he had known that an amount of $600,000 outstanding in notes was not included in the statement of the corporation's liabilities.

King Relieves Wants of Beggar Blinded in War

Washington, September 18.—Practically all of today's cabinet meeting, the longest held since President Coolidge entered the White House, was devoted to discussion of the agricultural situation.

Afterward it became known that Secretary Wallace is making a particular study of the wheat problem, and will report to the president late next week, presenting facts which are expected to enable the executive and his advisers to formulate a constructive program along sound economic lines.

Some of the suggestions under consideration include the raising by some wheat growers of a premium crop to replace commodities now imported.

"On the Xer, sir. Perhaps you were there, that terrible spot near the ferryman's house."

"Indeed I was," said the stranger sadly, "for four years I was in prison from my home and country I was on that front and I know every metre of it. But I have had better luck than you. I found my house intact, though somewhat soiled upon my return, and some of my men were saved from the fire. Take this, go home and rest for a few weeks."

One day a tall light-haired man with a pronounced stoop of the shoulders and mild blue eyes that hid behind thick lenses, stopped to chat with the beggar.

"What have you wounded, comrade?" he asked.

"On the Xer, sir. Perhaps you were there, that terrible spot near the ferryman's house."

Owing to the recent death of the bride's father the wedding will be attended only by relatives and a few intimate friends.

TIGERS ATTEMPT LIFE OF RAIDERS

Baltimore, Md., September 18.—A successful raid by a squad of federal prohibition enforcement officers from Washington upon a house in South Fremont street today was followed by an attempt by supposed bootleggers to murder the drivers of the truck bearing part of the booty, several blocks distant from the scene of the raid.

The bullet fired from an automobile containing four men, missed the driver but hit the fire chief. The officer was working shoulder to shoulder with the ranchers by 8 o'clock. For five hours he fed sunflowers to the silage chopper. These were then stored in the silo for winter feed for the prime shorthorn cattle purchased cheap.

He stowed away as much corned beef and cabbage as anybody at noon and spent the remainder of the day shocking oats.

TWO MEN HURT
IN AUTO WRECK
FOUND IN WOODS

Thomasville, Ga., September 18.—(Special)—As the result of an automobile accident that occurred about ten miles from Tallahassee, Jimmy Trimble is unconscious at the hospital of his sister, Mrs. F. S. Saxon, of this city, and W. E. Pace has been sent to the railroad hospital at Waycross for treatment for many cuts and contusions.

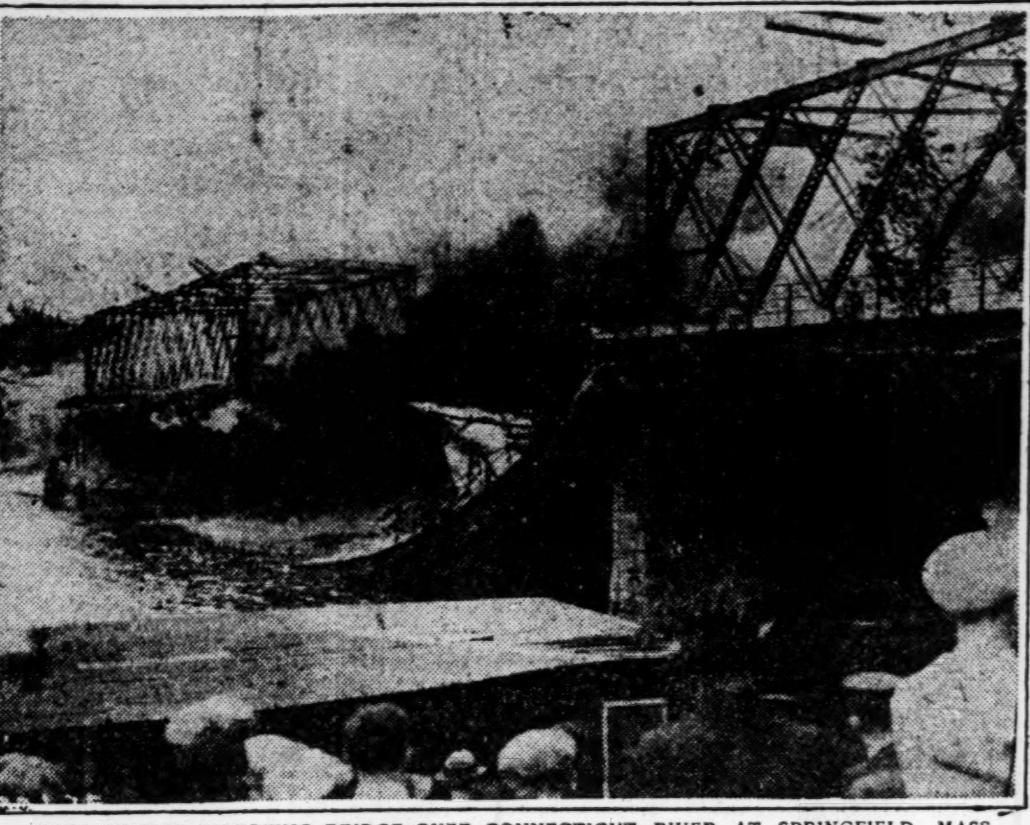

The two young men went Sunday night to visit friends in Tallahassee. They were taken Monday by some children in the woods ten miles from there. Mr. Pace managed to make the children understand about the accident, and where it occurred, and they found Mr. Trimble unconscious about two miles away, lying near the car. It is presumed Mr. Pace, who was driving, lost control of his car when one of the wheels left the axle, and that both men were whirled through the windshield. Mr. Pace received more cuts, but Mr. Trimble seemed to have been thrown on his head, several bones in his neck being dislocated. His condition is considered serious.

Both men were taken to Tallahassee for treatment before being brought here. Mr. Pace is a native of Gainesville, Fla., but has been in Thomasville for some months connected with the First Aid motorization. Mr. Pace is an employee of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad and lived at Luverne.
